City applies for funds to replace 49-year old water tank

■ Feds, state say city may be eligible for $1.8 million

By Pat Hampton
Tribune Publisher

A new million gallon water storage tank could replace the one built in 1966 that is inefficient and hazardous, tucked away in Feige Canyon.

Built in 1966, the Feige tank is in desperate need of rehabilitation or replacement said city public works director Mike Kirn. The Feige tank has had virtually no maintenance for the last 47-years because the city's water system couldn't operate without the storage tank. A new 1.5 million gallon water tank was completed atop Mt. Washington, which could allow the Feige tank to be taken off-line and repaired or replaced.

A 2013 Kennedy/Jenks report determined that the existing welded steel tank has significant structural/seismic deficiencies and is not mechanically anchored to the ground.

Kirn said the cost for a new tank was $2.4 million, but representatives from the State Office of Emergency Services (OES) and FEMA urged Kirn to apply for a Hazard Mitigation Grant Program (HMGP). Funds were made available because of the August 2014 earthquake in Napa.

In January, a notice that funding was available was sent to Kirn who told both agencies that Calistoga was interested in replacing the Feige Canyon water tank. Kirn submitted a letter with supporting documents about the condition and cost of the tank's replacement.

Last week Kirn was told that Calistoga met funding criteria and was told to apply for the grant. The OES would grant $1.87 million to the project if the city would commit to matching funds of $625,000.

Councilmembers approved the project Tuesday night at the council meeting, directed Kirn to send in the supporting paperwork for the grant and a commitment of matching funds by the city.

Kirn reported the lifespan of a rehabilitated tank would be 40-years; a new tank, which is only a little over $300K more expensive, will last closer to 100-years, two-and-a-half times longer. The new tank must be completed by Sept. 11, 2018, according to the agreement.

HAPPY 1st DAY OF SPRING!

Elementary school teacher and photographer Lindsay Olsen shared a photo he took as Spring approached the Napa Valley. Today, March 20, is the first day of Spring. The word equinox is derived from the Latin words meaning "equal night." All over the world, days and nights are approximately equal. Today, the sun rises exactly in the east and sets exactly in the west.

City council supports bocce courts

■ Rotary Club says it is a community service

By Pat Hampton
Tribune Publisher

The Calistoga Rotary Club asked the city council this week if it could build four bocce ball courts in Logvy Community Park near the Napa River.

Ed Johnson, the club's community services chair, in a letter to city manager Richard Spitler, said the club members would build the four courts themselves and then turn them over to the city for upkeep.

Johnson said he understood that a 500-foot walkway allowing access to the courts and new handicapped parking would be required to meet ADA standards and wondered if those projects could be the city's responsibility.

Spitler said there were issues with the project that need to be worked out, including trash collection, a drainage holding area, picnic tables and a storage shed. He said the council should approve the plan in concept, but to allow time for city staff and Rotary members

Vine Trail meeting will explain how it will connect Calistoga to St. Helena

■ Vine Trail meeting Monday to share plans

By Amanda Rhodes
Tribune Staff Writer

An informational meeting on the proposed Vine Trail portion of the bike/walk pathway connecting Calistoga and St. Helena will be held Monday, March 23 at the Calistoga Community Center from 5:30 - 7 p.m.

Vine Trail staff and consultants will present an overview of the project that will ultimately provide nine continuous miles of scenic walking and biking trails connecting the two cities.

The Napa Valley Vine Trail Coalition, a nonprofit organization The Vine Trail, through a grant from an anonymous donor, has been working for the past two years with the city of Calistoga, Napa County and Caltrans to develop a route to connect Bothe-

Investigation on homicide case reveals dispute was over money

FOR THE CALISTOGA TRIBUNE

The Napa County Sheriff's Office revealed information in its investigation into Monday's reported homicide that took place south of the Town of Yountville, in the 6100 block of Solano Avenue.

Based on the facts of the investigation and witness interviews, Capt. Douglas Pike, information officer for the Napa County Sheriff's Office, said the investigation revealed that the two men, Emad Rasmy Tawfilis, 48, of Los Gatos, and Robert Dahl, 47, of Fairfield had a business relationship and were currently involved in some opposing civil litigation. They had scheduled to meet with each other at Dahl Vineyards for a possible settlement conference, without their attorneys. During the meeting, something tragically went wrong.

Investigation of the scene and eye witness interviews indicate that the assault began inside the winery building. From there, Tawfilis fled, on foot, southbound through the vineyard with Dahl pursuing him in his black SUV (a 2014 Toyota). As he was being pursued, Tawfilis was on a 911 line with Dispatch reporting that he had been shot and that "Robert Dahl" was coming after him in his truck and was trying to kill him. As he was chasing Tawfilis, Dahl was believed to be firing repeatedly at Tawfilis with a .22 caliber semiautomatic handgun.

After making his way to the intersection of Hoffman Lane and Solano Avenue, the now wounded Tawfilis fell to the ground

Track promoter asking businesses how races can help fans, downtown

By Bill Sessa
Tribune Sports Correspondent

Local business owners will be hosted by the management of Calistoga Speedway at a reception to discuss ways in which race weekends can be more successful for race fans and downtown customers alike.

The event, hosted by Tommy Hunt, race promoter and president of HMC Promotions, will be held March 30 at 6 p.m. at the Roastery on Lincoln Street in downtown Calistoga. All members of the Calistoga Chamber of Commerce are welcome to attend.

Tommy Hunt

“We are very honored to preserve and continue the legacy of racing that has been a vital part of Calistoga for 78 years,” said Hunt, who has promoted races at the half mile oval for the last three years and created and promoted the track’s biggest event, the Louie Vermeil Classic. “In a sense, the track belongs to the community,” said Hunt, who noted that local service organizations such as the Lions Club and Wildcat Booster

Speedway promoter wants to meet with fans and downtown businesses to discuss ways to improve race weekends.

Club raise funds with their volunteer work on race weekends. “We would like to do everything that we can to make race weekends as successful as possible both at the fairgrounds and downtown and are looking forward to hearing the comments and suggestions of local business owners,” he said. Unlike most race tracks on county fairgrounds that host races every weekend from spring to fall, Calistoga Speedway has the distinction of hosting only special events on four to six weekends from April through September. As one of a few surviving half mile ovals in the western United States, Calistoga Speedway is larger than other local tracks and regularly draws thousands of out-of-town fans on race weekends that host major national and regional traveling series for sprint cars and motorcycles. Calistoga Speedway’s 2015 schedule kicks off with a “Sprint Car Spectacular” featuring the national World of Outlaws and three regional sprint car series on April 11-12. The King of the West sprint car series returns on June 27. Non-wing, traditional sprint cars will be featured during the three-day Louie Vermeil Classic on Labor Day weekend, September 4-6. The national championships for the AMA Flat Track series ends the season on Sept. 26.

So what do you know that I don't?

I missed the city council meeting this week, gave it a pass for a night at Uptown Theater and the music of ukulele virtuoso Jake Shimabukuro.

I know, how can I pass up a city council meeting for a ukulele? A voice that said “just do it, you can watch the meeting the next day” gave me leave to forego my seat in the front row at the Community Center and find a seat inside the Uptown Theater instead. It was a pretty light agenda, the introduction of building bocce courts was the highlight of the night. Let me know if I missed any good stories.

We are enjoying, like everyone else, the gorgeous weather with a bit of guilt. Hopeful that storm clouds will return someday, and the trees and plants will fill up on rainwater, we look at the azure sky and say a quiet prayer for rain, significant rain. Everyone's dressing in flip-flops and shorts, putting on sunglasses and talking about the weather while looking over their shoulder. Even the family dog is lying outside on the sidewalk getting a sun bath before she comes into the house.

Heard a really good idea about the new LED school sign that is continually scrolling messages and reminders about dates and events in front of the elementary school. You can't miss it, bright green and white lights project information like an old teletype. Why not use it for some educational fun? Start a “Word of the Day” campaign for the students to see and interact with going to and from school. Put up a word in the morning and by afternoon add it's meaning. Fifth and sixth graders especially would increase their vocabularies as well as drivers who pass by.

Speaking of differences at the school compared to what those of us from the Boomer crowd remember, I heard the bell ring for change of class or the end of lunch. Not too long ago the bells sounded just like those used in prisons, angry and shrill and very unpleasant. But the bells at CES were pleasant tones, almost like chimes instead of that irritating bell that sent out demands for cooperation.

Hardly fair that tomorrow is Spring opening day, but it is. If we are not ready for it the flora and fauna certainly are, everything is starting to bloom or push buds out. Makes it very obvious that we skipped winter and went directly into Spring. Let's hope we don't go right into Summer too early.

Not too much going on in town, city council will start its dialogue over the budget, which has to be adopted by June. But with that windfall from two developers, that won't be hard.

So, what do you know that I don't? Tell me.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Time for countywide building moratorium

Dear Editor,

There are already 467 wineries in Napa County. An audit by county staff found that almost half of the wineries did not comply with their use permits in 2013. It appears that the county is unable – or unwilling – to monitor the presently-operating wineries. Yet the county is presently considering 41 permits for new projects. And, to make matters worse, towns such as Calistoga are giving the green-light to huge, inappropriate resort complexes such as “Calistoga Hills.”

Most of the arguments for unfettered development are pure bunkum. One speaker at the recent joint meeting of the County Supervisors and Planning Commissioners warned, “If there were no visitors to Napa Valley, locals would have to spend $10,000 more per year to keep the economy of Napa County as it is now.” Honestly! Nobody is suggesting that we kick out all the wineries and turn visitors away at the county line.

On the other hand, how many visitors will want to come to a “Wine Country USA” theme park?

“Too much of a good thing is wonderful,” quipped Mae West – but most of us realize that it is wiser to practice “moderation in all things,” as the ancient philosophers advised. It's

VOLUME 12 ISSUE 46

Knee'd advice on what to give the recovering patient?

After years of threatening and whining, it is time to put up or shut up. You have your knee replaced. Mind you, it is not an operation; those haven't been around since the Eighties. It is a "procedure." It's as if giving this event a less scary name, makes it easier. Forget that! When part of your kneecap is sawed off and replaced with a titanium and polyethylene device, it is a very big deal.

Before the operation, the staff is syrupy sweet. You get aromatherapy and a neck massage, and they are constantly asking if there is anything else they can do to make you comfortable, but you are thinking only, "Yes, get me the hell out of here," but of course you don't want to be impolite.

Then you are back in your room in a blur and feeling pretty good. In a few hours a nurse comes in and asks you if you are

by Linda Williamson

ready to walk down the hall. Has that woman been nipping the drugs out of the operating room... a few hours and she wants you to walk up the hall? But you do it, and you are mighty proud.

You are home before the cat needs feeding, and in comes the army of volunteers, each carrying a pot of chicken soup. The refrigerator is soon bulging with small packages of casseroles, salads and sweets. You, however, are floating on a vicodin stew of nausea and bizarre images, and you don't give a fig about food.

Soon you are clunking around on your walker realizing that everything you need is on another floor. The toilet seat feels like it is at floor level and it is a scary trip getting down to it. Everyone observes your wincing and fidgeting and asks, "Wouldn't you be more comfortable with a pillow?" or "Do you need me to prop you up?" and all you want to do is pass out and wake up in July climbing the Oat Hill Mine Trail.

Everyone knows someone who has had the knee replacement procedure and so everyone is an expert on what you should do. Switch to Tylenol or stick with the heavy drugs? Use the ice machine or a bag of peas? Cane or walking sticks? Celebrex or ibuprophen?

Days are sometimes good or not so good, but the worst ones are when the sweet physical therapist comes in. She asks you to raise your knee to a position that is about as attainable as bench pressing an elephant. And when you get it to about half the height she asks, she tells you to do it ten more times. Then gives you four more sets of exercises to practice three times per day until she returns. You try to distract her. You beg for the ice machine.

"...all you want to do is pass out and wake up in July climbing the Oat Hill Mine Trail."

People continue to call to help, but you don't keep good records and one person arrives with a hamburger at the same time another comes in with a pizza, but it is the people you want to see and everything works out. You realize that your friends are the best people on earth, and you are so fortunate to have them.

Little by little, the knee pain subsides and you start thinking about writing an article about the experience because you, now, are also an expert on knee replacement. You call your article, "What To Give the Joint Replacement Patient" and list these as favorites: soda crackers, ginger in any form, fresh fruit, pillows for propping, lavender anything, bags of ice, a neck massage, and chicken soup.

Ted Kooser,
U.S. Poet Laureate,
2004-2006

Father and Daughter
by Amanda Strand

Amanda Strand is a poet living in Maryland. I like this poem for its simplicity, clarity and directness. No frills to decorate it, just the kind of straightforward accounting of an experience that Henry David Thoreau said he looked for in an author.

The wedding ring I took off myself, his wife wasn't up to it. I brought the nurse into the room in case he jumped or anything. "Can we turn his head?" He looks so uncomfortable." She looked straight at me, patiently waiting for it to sink in.

The snow fell. His truck in the barn, his boots by the door, flagpoles empty. It took a long time for the taxi to come. "Where to?" he said. "My father just died," I said. As if it were a destination.

American Life in Poetry is made possible by The Poetry Foundation (www.poetryfoundation.org), publisher of Poetry magazine. It is also supported by the Department of English at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. Poem copyright ©2014 by Amanda Strand and reprinted by permission of the poet. The introduction's author, Ted Kooser, served as United States Poet Laureate Consultant in Poetry to the Library of Congress from 2004-2006.

Selling spectacle in the Valley

OBFUSCATIONS by Pad McGinnis

my fellow human beings, besides the ones that are rooted in choice. We are all given a unique set of blessings and obstacles in life and that's the trite truth of it. I don't much care for cultural training that instills taboos and engenders incendiary defensiveness over breeches of etiquette. Even if this training is in the name of equality, I think instructing sensitivities over certain words or discouraging open conversation and candid observation, serves more to separate than to unite. I relish honesty and directness, even at times when the truth proves severe.

I liken the dwarf winery to a Hooters restaurant. An arbitrary yet distinct bodily characteristic is selected for which large portions of the population show an innate fascination and then this trait is showcased for the amusement of customers. Crude, yes, but effective...endlessly effective. People will no sooner stop being intrigued by little people, than men will stop being intrigued by big boobs. Is this distasteful? Sure, and a lot of honest things are. But we in the valley have a special intolerance for the distasteful. We wouldn't allow a Hooters in Yountville even if they served wagu beef and $300 cabernets.

The valley deals in a veneer of refinement, sophistication, and class. This is how it draws the spending dollars of the world's most wealthy tourists. In many tasting rooms you will find the main product being pushed is not so much a bottle of wine as a purchased sense of superiority. Each winery tries to outshine, outperform and generally out-fancy its rivals, in a race to sell a fantasy lifestyle. This is how the valley has grown to be a place of Persian palaces, medieval European castles, gondola rides, silvery-shimmering 20 foot rabbits and so forth. Spectacle sells and like it or not the valley has become a full-blown Disneyland. Or so I think.

This is one reason the dwarf winery appealed to me, for its transparent admission of the amusement park nature of the Napa wine business. Of course, there are many who see it as to Calistoga. According to Vine Trail officials, almost all the pre-engineering and environmental work has been completed. A short section of the Vine Trail from the existing bike path in Calistoga has been approved by the city and is ready for construction.

The Vine Trail overall mission is to build a 47-mile walking/biking trail system to physically connect the entire Napa Valley, from Vallejo’s Ferry Terminal to the foot of Mt. St. Helena in Calistoga, for a more livable, family and visitor community.

The cost of building one mile of Vine Tail has an average cost of $1 million for each of its 47 miles, according to the coalition. The projected cost to complete the entire route of the trail is between $46-50 million.

Presently 25 percent of the cost is being raised through private donations and sponsor partnerships and an additional $7.5 million is being raised for a maintenance endowment to assure the trail for generations to come.

The Vine Trail Coalition and the Napa County Transportation Planning Agency (NCTPA) is planning to apply for a grant under the next round of California’s Active Transportation Program (ATP) in May 2015, with support from the cities of Calistoga and St. Helena.
The grant would fund in three phases the construction of the connection from Calistoga to Bothe-Napa Valley State Park, the design and environmental studies, and construction of the trail from Bothe to Pratt Ave. in St. Helena.

to meet and go over the requirements, budget and timeline.

Spitler said the master plan for Logvy Park calls for bocce ball courts in the same area that Rotary is proposing to develop.

In his letter Johnson said the club was not proposing to have outdoor lights or picnic tables “but are leaving room for them in the design.”

He said the club’s intent is to have the courts built by June.

While the city council gave the project its support, it also said it needed more information on the cost of the project. Spitler said he was confident that as soon as the courts are built, a Calistoga Bocce League will be formed.

B&G Club breakfast raises $79,000 in support of kids

The Boys & Girls Clubs of St. Helena and Calistoga held its second “Calistoga Annual Breakfast for Kids” on Friday March 13th at the Butler Pavilion at the Calistoga fairgrounds.

A total of 152 guests attended the event, emceed by Calistoga Mayor Chris Canning, and key-noted by retired San Francisco 49er President and CEO Carmen Policy.

A gross total of $79,320 was raised at the event, which supports the annual operating budgets of the Calistoga school-based Club at Calistoga Elementary School, the Calistoga Teen Center and the St. Helena-Calistoga Youth Diversion and Intervention Program.

Youth of the Year Vanessa Hernandez, a freshman at Calistoga High School, gave an inspiring presentation on the support and friendship she receives at the Calistoga Teen Center.
“Last year’s inaugural event, featuring Olympic Champion Billy Mills set a high bar,” commented Boys & Girls Clubs Executive Director Jay Templeton. “Our second year was bigger than the first, and we look to continue to grow in 2016. The support of the Calistoga community for the kids and Clubs is great to see.”

Tubbs Lane fire burns 100 feet along the shoulder of the road

CAL FIRE, Napa County Fire Department, and Calistoga Fire Department resources responded to a roadside vegetation fire Tuesday on Tubbs Lane in Calistoga at 3:56 p.m. The fire burned vegetation approximately 100 feet along the roadside and was contained at 4:05 p.m. There were no injuries and no structures or vehicles were damaged. The fire was caused by sparks from a vehicle.

CAL FIRE urges motorists to have their vehicles checked by a qualified service technician if they are running rough, misfire, backfire, have worn brakes, or if the Check Engine or Service Engine Soon light are on.

Boys under 12 team undefeated in season, post a 7-1 overall finish at tournament

The Calistoga Under 12 Boys team from Calistoga went undefeated (5-0) during the regular season. Their only setback this year came in a nail-biting 28-27 overtime loss early in the league tournament, but they came back to win their final two tournament games, finishing 7-1 overall.

Christian Caldera was the team’s leading scorer and standout player, with his athleticism, ball-handling, and shooting skills. Every member of the team had something to contribute to their successful season.

“As coaches of this team, we are proud of our players growth in personal skills and especially in their teamwork. We all had some fun while learning to play a smarter game,” said coach Brian Fennen.

This year’s team included Christian Caldera, Sean Fennen, Greyson Ittig, Marvin Marin, Iggy Mendoza, Christian Montanez, CJ O’Connor, Diego Ordaz, Jesus Rojas, and Eric Servin.

Coaches were Brian Fennen and Gary Ittig. The basketball league is co-sponsored by the Calistoga Recreation Department.

Speedway hosting 78th year of racing on half-mile oval

A full weekend of open-wheel racing featuring the national World of Outlaws and three of Northern California’s top touring series for sprint cars will jumpstart Calistoga Speedway’s upcoming season.

The 2015 season, which is the 78th year of racing on the half mile oval at the Napa County Fairgrounds, also includes a separate event for the King of the West sprint cars, the traditional Louie Vermeil Classic over Labor Day weekend and the return of the AMA Grand National championships for flat track motorcycles.

In addition to the Outlaws, the “Sprint Car Spectacular” on Saturday and Sunday, April 11-12, will also include the prestigious King of the West series for “410” sprint cars, the Civil War series for “360” sprint cars and the traditional non-wing sprint cars of the Hunt Magneto series.

“It’s a weekend that offers fans a race for every taste,” noted Tommy Hunt, Calistoga Speedway promoter. “No matter what kind of sprint car a fan would like, it will be here that weekend with a little something for everybody.”

The World of Outlaws features some of the nation’s best touring pros, led by six time national champion Donny Schatz from North Dakota. The Calistoga stop also will be a homecoming of sorts for some of the Outlaw drivers who began their careers in Northern California, including former Calistoga Speedway champion

Paul McMahon, who now makes his home in Tennessee, and Brad Sweet formerly of Grass Valley, who drives a car owned by NA-SCAR driver Kasey Kahne.

For the first time ever, racers in the King of the West series, led by two- time and defending champion Kyle Hirst of Chico, will earn points toward their season-long championship based on their finishes racing against the World of Outlaws each night, an added incentive for teams with title hopes.

The Civil War Series returns to Calistoga Speedway on Saturday night of that weekend for a separate racing program after a two year absence, offering Calistoga resident Mike Benson, a regular on that tour, a rare chance to race in front of a hometown crowd.

In addition, the non-wing sprint cars of the Hunt Magneto Series will race a full program on Sunday night of the season-opening weekend.

Little League opens season tomorrow at Tedeschi Field

Little League is having its 2015 Opening Ceremonies tomorrow on March 28 starting at 11a.m. at Tedeschi Field. Lots of fun activities for all ages as well as honoring all the folks in the community who’ve helped make it happen over the years.

‘Cats hitting their stride, winning 2 of 3 games

■ Reaping rewards of tough pre-season schedule, softball team on a roll

By Gene Duffy
Tribune Sports Writer

Calistoga softball is reaping the rewards of a tough pre-season schedule as the Cats have won two out of their three last games, Saturday in the Cats three team tournament, Calistoga exploded for 23 hits in the opener, beating the Tech Titans 24-12.

The Cats held a 24-2 lead when coach Blakeley substituted freshman CiCi Montanez for pitcher Hailey Butcher enabling Montanez to get a little work. Tech worked her over for 10 runs in her second stint of the year on the mound.

Freshman Megan Mills went 5 for 5 for the Cats while senior Jenna Franquelin was 3 for 4 with 2 doubles, a triple and 4 RBI's.

Butcher struck out 10 batters in four innings of work to notch the win.

In the second game Saturday, facing St. Helena, the Cats dug a 9-0 hole before staging a dramatic 7 run comeback in the bottom half of the last inning, falling just short in the 9-7 loss.

Tuesday, Calistoga traveled to St. Helena and had their best outing of the season, revenging Saturday's loss with an impressive 16-4 win on the Saints home diamond.

Franquelin led the Calistoga attack with two tape measure home runs, a double, and six RBI's. Montanez had a ground rule double, while Joyce Aquino and Giana Pochini each contributed three hits.

Butcher was impressive on the mound keeping the Saints off balance with a variety of pitches and holding the Saints to 4 hits.

Next up, Anderson Valley comes calling today at 4 p.m.
