Mandatory water rules in effect

By Pat Hampton

Stage 2 water emergency measures passed by the city council on Feb. 4 take effect tomorrow with hopes that overall use will drop 20 percent or more compared to last year's usage, today's rain storm notwithstanding.

A storm dropped nine inches of rain on Calistoga two weeks ago filled up the city's reservoir but did not wash away fears of a continuing drought. The current rainy day downpour, predicted to drop as much as another two inches of rain from Wednesday through tomorrow, is not enough to change the city council's mind.

"While we did have somewhat of a monsoon several weeks ago, we still are under severe water situation, a drought, so our water emergency restrictions take effect March 1," reminded Mayor Chris Canning at the last council meeting. Tomorrow's new, more stringent restrictions follow on the heels of a Stage 1 Water Emergency measure passed in October asking for a voluntary 10 percent reduction in water consumption. Instead, Calistogans used 30 percent more water during the same period than the previous year.

This newest measure restricts outdoor watering to weekdays only, with odd addresses allowed to water on Tuesdays and Thursdays and even addresses on Mondays and Wednesdays. There should be no outdoor irrigation on Friday, Saturday or Sunday.

AVA elbowing for attention

By Tony Poer

Tribune Contributor

It started with a broken leg. Skiing near Lake Tahoe on his birthday in 2003, Bo Barrett collided with a tree. The tree was ok, but Chateau Montelena's head winemaker was laid up at home for weeks.

"I couldn't really work for the Chateau," he recalled. "I needed a project."

Encouraged by his colleague Rudy von Strasser, the project Barrett tackled was an ambitious one: to lobby the federal government to grant AVA, or American Viticultural Area, status to the unique grape growing region surrounding Calistoga. He started the petition from his bed while recuperating and eventually took the effort to Washington, DC.

By early 2010, after a couple setbacks, the application was accepted.

Calistoga became Napa Valley's 15th AVA.

Skip ahead a few years to last week, when Chateau Montelena, along with 21 other local wineries, poured their wines at the Calistoga Winegrowers' third annual AVA tasting. Sterling Vineyards hosted the event at their hilltop winery.

The tasting was held in conjunction with Premiere Napa Valley, the high-profile series of trade events put on each February by the Napa Valley

Vintners. Sterling's chai, a high-ceilinged barrel storage room, was rearranged for the afternoon as a hospitality center: tables were decked out with food from local restaurants, and an array of current releases and special bottlings were available, produced by the Calistoga Winegrowers.

The decent-sized crowd consisted mainly of restaurant buyers and wine retailers, as well as out-of-state distributors who no doubt enjoyed the fine weather all week, and a few press characters who skipped lunch beforehand.

With the Calistoga AVA's growing reputation reinforced by the Napa Vintners' extensive connections to wholesalers around the country, the event was a showcase opportunity for the participating wineries.

Scam targets elderly alone in parking lots

■ Victims in Vallejo made to drive to American Canyon banks to get cash

By Pat Hampton

Tribune Publisher

The Napa County Sheriff's office is warning county residents of a scam targeting elderly people that has resulted in a financial loss of at least $25,000 between two victims.

On Jan. 29 and again on Feb. 25, according to Chief Tracey Stuart of American Canyon, elderly males were approached when walking in a parking lot, alone, to their vehicles after making a purchase at a grocery-type store in Vallejo.

They were approached in the morning hours, first by an adult male dressed well asking for help finding "Peabody Street" in Vallejo, Stuart said in a statement issued late Wednesday.

"The suspect speaks with a heavy African accent and claims to be from a "Whtuze" or "Zulu" tribe in Africa," Tracey said. "The suspect claims to have a large sum of money he inherited and asks for help from the victim distributing it to the poor, or churches or similar. At some point, the suspect shows the victim a large amount of

Free lecture on life of black bears

What do black bears do when no one is watching?

Richard Callas, Senior Environmental Scientist with the California Department of Fish and Wildlife will present on the fascinating life histories of black bears and other aspects of bear ecology.

The free lecture is on Friday, March 7 at the Pepperwood Preserve, 2130 Pepperwood Preserve Road.

Speaking on the topic “The Black Bear: Predator and Scavenger,” Callas will share the results of bear monitoring using techniques such as passive infrared cameras.

He will also discuss some of the challenges this intriguing species presents to humans as well as effective approaches for living safely in bear country.

The 7 p.m. lecture will be followed by a question and answer session with the speaker. An open house is set for 6:30 p.m.

1705 Washington St., to answer questions and help fill out applications. For further questions or to make an appointment, call Elena Mendez at (707) 341-3185.

‘Tai Chi Easy’ class on Sundays in March

Calistoga Recreation Services is offering a “Tai Chi Easy” class on Sundays in the Community Center from 11 a.m. to noon starting March 9.

Instructor Lauren Sugarman will lead each class that consists of four components: gentle movements, the breath, self-applied massage and relaxation/meditation.

The benefits of Tai Chi include stress release, balance and joint mobility and heart health.

Cost is $5 per class, drop-in and is open to all fitness levels, ages 16 and up. Contact Mary Sherman at the city rec department, 942-2838 for more information.

Garden Club to hear new gazebo plans

Bob Fiddaman, president of the Friends of Pioneer Park, will speak to the Calistoga Garden Club about the building go the new gazebo and plans for the park’s landscaping.

Given the club’s many years of involvement with Pioneer Park, it has a special interest in the impact of the proposed changes to the landscape and the layout of hard-scape and plant materials.

“We look forward to hearing

Mr. Fiddaman and learning more about the improvements to one of this community’s important resources and landmarks,” said member Dina Corcoran.

The club will meet on Thursday, March 13, at 2 p.m. in the Garden Room at the Napa County Fairgrounds in Calistoga. Newcomers are welcome. For more information call 942-6063 or 942-6768.

Cameo hosts Oscar show for centers

Cameo Cinema in St. Helena is hosting a spectacular, fun-filled celebration with a live screening of the 86th Academy Awards on Sunday, March 2 with proceeds going to the Up Valley Family Centers.

Food and wine will be served throughout the event, and attendees will compete to pick the Oscar winners with raffle drawings for great prizes.

Guests are invited to glam it up for the red carpet, or come dressed as a favorite Hollywood movie star or character. Support the local family centers and join a community of friends who love movies and love to have a great time

Doors open at 4 p.m. for guests to view the much anticipated red carpet arrivals and interviews, followed by the awards ceremony which begins at 5 p.m.

Tickets are $75 per person and (tax deductible portion is $55). For tickets contact Norma Ferriz, Up-Valley Family Center, St. Helena office 707-963-1919 or the Cameo Cinema 707-963-9779.

'Done to Death' coming to Black Box Theater

CHS drama class turns to murder

By Claudia Aceves
Tribune Cub Reporter

For this year's spring play, the Calistoga High School's drama class is shaking things up from previous years by choosing the more complex murder mystery parody from the 1970s, "Done to Death" by Fred Carmichael.

"It's something a little different than what we've done," said Calistoga High School's drama teacher, Tyrone Sorrentino.

The comedy's plot line focuses on five unique mystery writers that come together to write a new murder mystery TV series, until their collaborative efforts lead to actual murder among the group and a real mystery unfolds.

The five protagonists, Jessica and Whitney Olive, Mildred Z. Maxwell, Brad Benedict and Rodney Duckton, are to be played by CHS students Christine Prager, Walker Hughes, Mark Duffy, Isabella Fernandez, Sonja Galetti, Dalton Hooten, Daniel Gross, Lindsey Villagomes and Orion Roberson.

The play was brought forth to Sorrentino by senior Isabella Fernandez, who first discovered it online. "We've been wanting to do a murder mystery for a while," said Sorrentino, as to why he agreed to the play selection.

The students have been rehearsing since their return to school after winter break in mid-January, and have a lot to work on according to Sorrentino.

"This is definitely the most challenging play I've done here so far. It's more dialogue, more character development and more timing," Sorrentino said. "It gives a chance for the students to dive into their character."

Senior Christine Prager, who will be taking on the role of Jessica Olive, will be performing in her fourth school play and believes this is the most interesting one yet.

"It's not so cookie-cutter high school play. It's one that I think everyone can relate to," Prager said.

Although she doesn't have a particularly difficult time getting into a role, Prager is facing the challenge of mentally preparing herself for a more "complex character."

The play performance dates are set for April 2 to April 5 at 7 p.m. and Sunday, April 6 at 6 p.m. at the Calistoga High School.

ways or patios using city water is allowed and if cars and trucks are washed with city water, use of a bucket and hose equipped with an automatic shut-off nozzle is required.

For Calistoga restaurants, Stage 2 measures include serving water to customers only on request, a practice several eateries have already put into practice.

"We've actually already done that," said councilmember and Calistoga Inn co-owner Michael Dunsford. "We no longer set the table with water glasses, and have seen very little resistance, more often than not customers don't want water." Dunsford said because the Inn sends out its bedding to a Santa Rosa vendor, there was no way to decrease the amount of water used in the hotel laundry side of the business.

At Golden Haven Hot Springs, manager Barry Stern said his Lake Street spa is fortunate to have a geothermal well on site and uses the hot water for washing clothes and other items. He, too, sends the room bedding to an outside facility for washing. He said he is looking at ways to cut down on irrigation use, and is working towards "what we can do to conserve."

At 1226 Washington, the new restaurant which opened last fall, server James Gutierrez said workers there were only offering diners water if they asked for it.

This weather is so bizarre

It is so bizarre, going from a warm, glorious sun-filled day where flip flops and t-shirts are common to one of cold drizzling rainfall within 18 hours. Not that our eastern cousins aren’t experiencing even more bizarre weather, having to scrape ice off their windshields one day and then kayak to the store the next. Darren Aronofsky’s retelling of the classic tale of the flood and Noah’s ark starring Russell Crowe opens March 28, and just may be the weather movie to fit this current weather pattern. And the bonus is watching Crowe on the big screen.

We took a big leap this week and had our lawn pulled out, moved a few olive trees and fixed the drip irrigation leaks. The grass areas have been replaced with gravel pathways and we made room for a few more fruit trees on drip irrigation. Just can’t do $400 bi-monthly water bills anymore, so we hope the changes reduce our water consumption but keep our home value. The yard looks a bit naked, and the dog’s not sure what’s going on, but this drought calls for serious changes. I was standing in the kitchen the other day finishing a second cup of tea, when I reached towards the sink to toss out the last few gulps. I stopped my hand in mid-air, alarmed, and thinking, “I can’t throw this away! I’ve got to take it outside and water a potted plant!”

As we get closer to June, it’s beginning to feel like an election year. For our own political arena, Mayor Chris Canning’s chair will be up for a vote in November, as will the four-year terms of city councilmembers Gary Kraus and Jim Barnes. Calistoga’s election is Nov. 4, and nomination papers don’t have to be filed until Aug. 8. State and county offices get a vote on June 3. District 3 Supervisor Diane Dillon is running for re-election and is being challenged by Lewis Chilton of Yountville. Diane was first elected to the board in 2002, while Chilton has served on the Yountville Town Council since 2007. County Assessor John Tuteur is running for office again, and is facing a campaign by Brian Kelly, who just announced that all five mayors in Napa County are supporting him. Stay tuned for another interesting year.

Reflection on tourism and water resources

Dear Editor,

Calistoga’s water resources may be adequate for our historical rainfall average, but when a drought hits we have major problems.

The never-say-die opponents of Calistoga’s resort projects blame this on a lack of foresight at city hall. But, more accurately, it’s a lack of money.

With the exception of the new water tank atop Mount Washington, water resources in Calistoga have been neglected for decades just as our many other municipal needs have been neglected.

Through the years the city hasn’t had the political will to acknowledge its problems and demand solutions. That’s why we’ve lost one-third of our water reservoir capacity to the accumulation of sediment.

It’s also why we have crumbling streets, sidewalks and bridges, leaking sewer lines, a termite-infested library, and a community center that looks more like Appalachia than the Napa Valley.

Opponents of the new resorts like to point to our recently improved local economy, as if that will solve our financial problems, but history has shown that it won’t.

Without new development, city revenues won’t be adequate to deal with the mountain of infrastructure work that has piled up.

We’ll continue devolving into a second-rate community, a place with lots of hope but a dearth of reality-based solutions.

The city escaped bankruptcy three years ago because of a reliable stream of revenue from the relatively new Solage Resort.

So it made sense that the city council turned to more resorts as a possible solution to the long-term problem of revenue that is insufficient to meet the town’s basic needs.

Finally, our foresight has told us that we need a better plan for water resources and all of the other services that enhance the quality of our lives.

Greetings from Uganda, my journey: Part two

GUEST COLUMN

by Allison Godwin Neumeister

Bituwa, Bududa District, Uganda

My bedroom is comfortable, with an elevated bed and a foam mattress. I enjoy a private room, though the roosters outside my window crow every morning at 5 a.m., a consistent and welcome alarm clock for the family.

The kitchen is a traditional African kitchen. My host mother spends nearly her entire day there, making fires, heating water and washing dishes from the previous evening’s meal.

Breakfast is rarely taken in the villages, and lunch, which is served only at western schools, consists of a cup of maize porridge.

Dinner is typically beans and maize mash. Occasionally, the family will eat matoke (underipe bananas) as a starch. When I shop in the trading center, I buy extra food and pass it on to the family.

I can easily find cabbage, tomatoes, bananas and some greens. I also treat them to meat once a week. I prefer to buy the meat fresh after the slaughter; otherwise, the raw carcass hangs in the heat of the sun much of the day with flies buzzing around it.

I’ve quickly adjusted to cooking among roosters and hens. Fowl wander all over the cooking area, and though the health outreach team discourages cooks from keeping live poultry in the kitchen, they’re hard-pressed to change this cultural norm.

Collecting water is the principal activity each day. Children rise with the roosters’ crowing and run down to the river for water before dawn.

After school, children collect more water before they begin their homework. Older girls routinely collect three to four 40-pound jerry cans a day.

I can barely carry the cans 10 feet, yet these strong young girls carry them several kilometers and up very steep slopes, slopes I can climb only by grabbing tree roots to pull myself up.

The greatest challenge during my first few days in this new home revolved around water. I politely refused to drink water from the river and went nearly three days without it (due to poor planning on my part).

At last I was able to communicate my growing need for spring water, and paid dearly to get it. Now we have a good system where I pay an eager student $1.25 to collect water for me daily.

This money will cover her school fees for a semester. While I collect water from the spring, the rest of the community collects their water from the stream, where they also bathe and do laundry.

The health outreach team encourages them to drink spring water, but the line can be long, the water flow weak, and the hike too long for many.

Though the locals know spring water is the healthier alternative, they grow complacent from fatigue and the daily demands of living under these conditions. I suppose the choice will ultimately come down to water or wood.

River water requires boiling, and fuel wood is becoming too difficult to find. It’s usually on someone else’s property and trespassing for fuel wood is a crime.

Shower and Latrine

The shower is interesting. It’s made of sticks and banana fiber, pretty much resembling the shower on Gilligan’s Island. I carry a plastic tub with water for sponge bathing.

No lingering in the shower here. The children spot clean with small buckets of water (basins) or wash in the river.

The latrine is a downer. Simply a hole in the floor. The extended family shares one latrine, but it’s surprisingly clean. A second latrine is currently being dug, which is excellent news for half the family.

I’m discouraged from using the latrine at night, for fear of hyenas, leopards and ancestral spirits. I seriously think the likelihood of seeing a spirit is higher than spotting a hyena or leopard in this overpopulated area.

I have yet to meet someone who’s seen a leopard, but I know many who’ve seen their dead ancestors. I feel safe and comfortable in my new home, and love all the activity around me.

Of course, everyone now knows a “mzungu” has moved in the village and stops by with curiosity to take a look at me.

Many will nudge their children to touch my hand, convinced it’s a sign of good luck. Hmmm...not sure the “whites” have brought Africans much luck, but I’ll do my best.

Calistoga News

“There’s a lot of interest in the AVA and curiosity about what we’re doing,” said Sonny Thielbar, tasting room and direct sales manager for Larkmead Vineyards. He poured a pair of 2011 Cabernets from the historic property’s small, all-estate production. “We’re getting the message out that Calistoga is serious.”

Larkmead is a founding member of the Calistoga Winegrowers. One of the AVA’s newest wineries, Joseph Cellars, also hosted a table. Owner Joe Bartholomew is a booster for Calistoga and was recently elected to the Winegrowers’ board.

“We’re seeing new distributors and wine bar owners,” Bartholomew observed, while he and hospitality manager, Graham Jones, served the winery’s steely 2012 Sauvignon Blanc to a group of restaurateurs. “There are new as well as familiar faces.”

Scanning the large room, he said, “I like the involvement with the community, and I like the involvement with the Calistoga restaurants coming in as participants.”

They weren’t positioned far from the station manned by members of the kitchen team at Calistoga Ranch, who provided duck rillettes on toasts.

Naturally, Chateau Montelena was represented. The winery chef, Nick Rugen, and Kali Clark, who normally handles media and communications, were on hand to pour Montelena’s Chardonnay and estate Cabernet.

“Seeing new faces is always a good thing, and getting your brand out there,” Clark said.

“I think it’s a great opportunity for Calistoga. It’s difficult when you have all the other PNV events going on. But hopefully as we build the Calistoga brand, we’ll get more people up here tasting our wines and seeing what a great place it is.”

Clark touched on two of the Calistoga Winegrowers’ challenges: the AVA’s location at the northern end of the Valley; and competition—on this day, anyway—with many other Napa Valley appellation tastings happening at the same time.

Laura Swanton, proprietor of Laura Michael Vineyards and the current president of the Calistoga Winegrowers, made a similar observation.

“This year’s attendance was a little bit less than we had last year,” she said. “I can’t explain why. I just know that the audience has a lot of different choices to make when they come for Premiere week, and we’re very far north, so sometimes that makes it a little difficult for people to make it up here.”

“But,” she noted, “we had 22 wineries showing today, which is a really good cross-section of the different varietals that are being grown in Calistoga. So we have a lot to offer.”

Swanton grows and bottles highly regarded Calistoga Zinfandel, as do her fellow AVA members Beth Summers of Summers Estate and Colleen Williams of Storybook Mountain.

The grape is integral to all three wineries’ productions, with Summers commenting that “a significant amount of the zinfandel in Napa County is grown in Calistoga.” It’s a reminder to the trade and media that the grip Cabernet Sauvignon has on consumers’ imagination tends to loosen the farther north one looks up-Valley.

Winemaker Brian Graham of Canard Vineyard is a Cabernet specialist who also poured a briary, old-school Zinfandel from his winery’s portfolio. He pointed out that Calistoga enjoys its own draw among Napa Valley AVAs.

“The idea behind the AVA is that it’s family-owned, estate fruit, and niche market,” he said, stepping away momentarily from the increasing din.

“It’s a pure expression of fruit. If you drink a Cabernet Franc from (member winery) Kennefick, you’re going to know it’s Cabernet Franc. If you drink Petite Sirah or Charbono from Summers, you’re going to know what it is.”

“I think Calistoga has a really cool identity. You know when you’re drinking something elegant, plush, full-bodied, and a little restrained. I love that identity of Calistoga.”

As a counterpoint to the red and white wines, Canard Vineyard poured an elegant, dry rosé made from estate-grown red grapes. A couple tables away, Brenda Cockerell, who started Coquerel Family Wine Estate in 2005, had her own unique lineup of wines, including a fruit-driven Petite Sirah and what may have been the most interesting white wine of the tasting, a crisp 2012 Verdelho.

Made by French winemaker Christine Barbe in the Sauvignon Blanc style, the Calistoga grapes, which were previously sold off to produce Port-style wines, are now picked early to keep the alcohol low and the food-friendliness high.

Coquerel’s sales manager, Kaylyn Montgomery, pointed out that Verdelho isn’t the only quasi-Iberian wine in the portfolio; this May, they’ll do their first Calistoga bottling of Tempranillo, the classic red grape of Spain.

“We had a tasting with (wine columnist) Dan Berger,” Montgomery recalled, “and he was talking about how Calistoga is kind of the last great AVA to have some of these different varietals that you really don’t see down-Valley.”

Amidst all the flowing wine and delicious food, probably lost on many of the invitees was the fact that, with Beth Summers and Laura Swanton in attendance, along with Ziata Wines proprietor Karen Cakebread, three quarters of the original Calistoga AVA brain trust were in the room.

Premiere Napa Valley has always been a huge draw for wine distributors from around the country.

Chris Lozano, a fine wine specialist with Atlanta Wholesale (one of the major wine distributors in Atlanta) was making his second trip to Premiere week.

“I really enjoy the event,” he said. “There’s a different profile from the north to the south end of the Valley, without a doubt.”

“Calistoga is very well-respected by our customers in Atlanta. I think all the wineries that were here today represent the AVA. It was very well-run and organized, and easy to get through. The setting was absolutely beautiful, and all the wines showed beautifully.”

At the end of the tasting, pouring a little more Petite Sirah for some late stragglers, Brenda Cockerell was on the same page as Lozano as she summed up.

“The long and short of it,” she said, “is I think everyone here is interested in making really terrific wine.”

“We’re a little bit like outliers, you know. We’re not the area where a lot of people get to when they come to Napa Valley. But there are fantastic wines here and fantastic restaurants. And so we’re just delighted to be a part of this group. It’s a very dynamic group of hardworking people.”

36th annual race set for Sunday

Local runners in NV Marathon

Calistoga runners Gilberto Garcia and Olof Carmel are among the 2,700 participants in the 36th Annual Kaiser Permanente Napa Valley Marathon on Sunday, March 2 that begins at 7 a.m. near Rosedale Road on the Silverado Trail.

Garcia, cellar master at Chateau Montelena, qualified for the Boston Marathon in December with a time of 3:23. Carmel is hoping to qualify for Boston and has to run 3:40 for his age group. Other Calistoga runners include Jaime Avila, Jessica Bori-Robledo and Clint Stevens.

A solid contingent of invited runners heads the sold-out crowd of marathon participants who will navigate the marathon's renowned point-to-point 26.2-mile course. The male and female winners will earn coveted first place prizes: their weight in Napa Valley wine.

Top entrants Chris Mocko (San Francisco) and Devon Yanko (San Anselmo) have each ascended the winner's podium two times at the

The NVM men's course record of 2 hours, 16 minutes and 20 seconds was set in 1987 by Dick Beardsley.

CHP organizes 'rolling road closure' for 26.2 miles marathon

The California Highway Patrol has organized the traffic and race control around a "rolling road closure" of Sunday's 36th annual Kaiser Permanente Napa Valley Marathon road course.

Runners will have the full width of the highway for the first 12.5 miles as in years past. Just before the Rutherford Cross Road (SR128) and Silverado Trail intersection, runners will be directed onto the southbound (right) lane where they will remain for the remainder of their time on the Silverado Trail. The northbound lane is for emergency, local law enforcement, and CHP vehicles, and official race vehicles.

Segments of Silverado Trail will be closed for varying lengths of time for the safety of runners. Also, stretches of Oak Knoll Avenue, Big Ranch Road and El Centro Avenue will be closed as runners make their way to the finish line at Vintage High School.

The closure timetable: Silverado from Calistoga to Dunaweal Lane: 5:30 to 8 a.m.; Silverado from Dunaweal to Deer Park: 6 to 9 a.m.; Silverado from Deer Park to Highway 128: 7 to 10 a.m.; Silverado from Highway 128 to Yountville Crossroads: 8 to 11 a.m.; Silverado from Yountville Crossroads to Oak Knoll: 8:15 to 11:45 a.m.; Oak Knoll to Vintage High: 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

large amount of cash. Also, the suspect claims to have a legal letter they want the victim to look at or read, to validate this story of inheriting money."

The con-man then convinces the elderly person to give him a ride to a location such as a church, bank or hotel. During the course of the ride, the scam artist suddenly requests the driver pull over to use the bathroom.

At this point a second suspect enters the picture and offers to help them. The second suspect acts like he does not know the victim or the first suspect.

Both con artists then coerce the victim into going to his bank, in this instance in American Canyon, to withdraw a large amount of cash.

The victim agrees to provide this cash in return for a larger amount of cash or some sort of validation that the suspects are reliable, trustworthy people.

"Once the suspects are given the cash by the victim, they create a way to leave with the victim's money and do not return," Stuart said in the statement. "There seems to be at least three or more suspects that rotate or help look out in this scam."

In each case one of the suspects is a black male, 50-60 years of age, with a heavy accent, well dressed in a dark pin striped suit, necktie and hat.

Between the two victims, the financial loss is more than $25,000.

Anyone with information or a similar experience is asked to contact Napa County Sheriff's Detective Nicol Dudley at 707-253-6031.

Boys & Girls Club Youth of the Year

Mayor Chris Canning took a few moments at last week’s city council meeting to issue proclamations in recognition of achievements by young Calistogans and a service organization.

President David Moon-Wainwright accepted a proclamation honoring the celebration of the 90th anniversary of the founding of the Calistoga Rotary Club. It was chartered in 1924 by 18 local businessmen.

“We are very lucky to have a very robust Boys and Girls Club,” said Canning as he honored Dustin Anderson as Diversion Youth of the Year, Tony Mendieta as Overall Youth of the Year for both St. Helena and Calistoga clubs and Layla Elkeshen was selected as Calistoga Youth of the Year.

LIBRARY

brarian Shelly Euser.

The idea for the Valentine, a conversation heart, was to hopefully begin a conversation among the community about the services that the Calistoga library offers, aside from books, CDs, DVDs and computer usage.

“The valentines are a medium to begin this conversation and for patrons to get to know their library better,” Euser said.

Because many cardholders have been members of the library for a long time, they have not yet been informed about new services offered, whereas new members have received all updated information. The library hopes to update current patrons, or encourage different locals to discover what is available to them by having a library card.

With a library card, members have access to a number of databases such as Academic OneFile, which features full-text articles from the world’s leading journals, Mango Languages to quickly and effectively learn a foreign language, Student Resources in Context for students seeking information on different topics, and Ancestry for those in search of the family tree, which is only available at the library.

The Calistoga Library also has “Play Aways” which are MP3 like devices with a head-phone jack that allows kids to plug in a set of headphones and listen to a story. “I love the Play Aways,” read one valentine.

In addition, the library carries Nooks in English and Spanish that feature between 50 and 120 books for adults and juveniles, which can be checked out for the regular amount of time of three weeks and is not renewable.

“Most people use them to find out if they want to buy it or not,” said librarian Kiki Revoir.

Although the Calistoga Library doesn’t yet offer as many in-home programs and events as other Napa County libraries, it recently featured free Origami sessions, and it will be hosting an iPod class this Saturday. It is also working toward bringing existing programs from the other libraries to Calistoga.

Here are just a few of the reasons Calistoga loves the library:

“The friendliness of staff members and the quiet and coziness of old time buildings.”

“I love the friendly service!”

“It has everything and so happily assisted.”

“Me gusta la libreria porque siempre tienen cosas diferentes.”

board when Krystal Castillo lined a single to right field, she scored when the throw, in an attempt to catch her swiping second base on a steal, rolled into centerfield. The speedy senior circled the bases to give the Cats a 1-0. Lower Lake answered in the bottom half of the inning on a couple of walks and a throwing error evened the score after one inning.

In the second, Katelyn Butcher, Giana Pochini and Joyce Aquino all worked Harris for free passes, Butcher and Pochini scored on Lexi Monhoff’s base hit. Monhoff had two hits on the day for the Cats but that was it for the Cats as Harris only allowed one hit the rest of the way.

The Trojans took the lead for good in the bottom half of the second when two walks, a fielder’s choice and a long base hit pushed across three more runs for Lower Lake.

The Lake County team pushed across two runs each in the 5th and 6th innings to secure the win.

Calistoga Sophomore Hailey Butcher threw the whole game, giving up 7 hits, 8 walks and 5 strikeouts.

Harris held the Cats to 4 hits, 5 walks while striking out 10 Wildcats.

“We played well for our first outing. We were a little timid at the plate and on the field with 7 errors and 8 walks,” said coach Jacob Blakeley. “The loss hurt, but we all understand it was our first game after one week of practice. Just a little hard work and we will be better.”

Next up, Windsor comes calling to Calistoga in the Cats home opener on Tuesday at 3:30 p.m. at the softball diamond on Stevenson Avenue.

Visiting teams will see welcome changes this spring at the softball field, with new dugouts and outfield fencing, and spectator bleachers positioned for better viewing.

the Wildcat hitters faced 3 separate hard throwers for the Trojans. As a result, they only had five hits in total with Pereira-McGee getting two of them. The team as a whole had 15 strikeouts.

The outstanding play of the game was made by center fielder Dylan Alvarado when he made a spectacular diving catch on a fly ball to center. He almost made a second one a few moments later when he was barely unable to run down a fly in deep right field.

Team members include Hector Aleman, Jorge Aleman, Daniel

Alfaro, Francisco Alfaro, Dylan Alvarado, Daniel Gross, Jose Hernandez, Dalton Hooten, Michael Lincoln, Jorge Lopez Romero, Colton Mollers, Timmy Montanez, Austin Pereira-McGee, James Prager, Daniel Rodriguez, Vitor Saito, Alejandro Sanchez, and Gilbert Trejo.

The ‘Cats host Trinity Prep Tuesday, March 4 at 3:30 p.m.

Youth Volleyball season sign-ups

The Upper Valley Youth Sports League is offering another season of youth volleyball in Calistoga announced Olivia Lemen, city rec services manager.

Offered for grades 4-8, the season is March 18 to May 22 at a cost of $60 per player (includes shirt). Practices are Tuesday in the cold gym and games are on Thursdays. Scholarships available.

For information, call Danny Alvarez at 707-942-2838 or email him at Dalvaez@ci.calistoga.ca.us. More programs available at www.calistogarecreation.com.

Wildcat netters lose to Panthers 2-3, in first match of season

Joe Fons had a great first match at first singles and Eddie Tapia put up a good fight at second singles when the Wildcats met the Panthers and lost their first match of the season 2-3, reports coach Jeanne Heck.

Eli Pena had her first match ever “and fought hard during every point,” Heck stated. “We expect great things from our singles players this year.” For doubles, the ‘Cats have a new team of Bryan Villa and Erik Valencia. The boys joined the team a few days before the match and have improved greatly in just those few days.

The Wildcats will host Anderson Valley on Tuesday, March 4 at the Monhoff Courts at 3:30 p.m. Results of Friday’s match are: In first singles, Joe Fons outplayed Colin Van Ree, 6-1, 6-2; Eddie Tapia lost to Maxence Weyrich in second doubles, 2-6, 4-6; and third seeded singles Elizabeth Pena lost 2-6 and 2-6 to Matthis Weyrich. In doubles, Calistoga’s top team of Villa and Valencia buried Anderson Valley’s Danny Espinoza and Alexia Osequera, 1-6 and 0-6. In second doubles, Juan Martinez and Yulisa Garcia fell 0-6, 0-6 to Alondra Esoinoza and Esmeralda Espinoza. An exhibition game between Wildcat Gisel Escobedo and Misseal Barosa went to Barosa, 1-6.

‘Cats first to score, but can’t stay ahead of Trojans

By Gene Duffy, Jr.

The season opener at Lower Lake featured one of the NCL I’s top pitchers taking the mound against the Wildcats. Shellby Harris held the Cats in check most of the afternoon while her teammates scraped together enough base runners and took advantage of some early season miscues on Calistoga’s part to notch an 8-3 win over the visiting Wildcats. The Cats were first on the score-

‘Cats drop opener to Lower Lake, 7-3

■ Pereira-McGee starting pitcher, Hooten catches

By Terry Ponsford
Tribune Sports Correspondent

The Wildcat baseball team traveled over Mt. St. Helena on Tuesday afternoon to meet the Lower Lake Trojans in their opening game of the 2014 season.

The team had eight practices before this game. Their rust was apparent but, then, so was Lower Lake’s. The Cats dropped the inaugural, 7-3.

The Cats lost some of last year’s best players through graduation but the good news is that Coach Jack McMahon has about 15 players on this year’s team. This is more than there were in 2013. This group is enthusiastic and supportive of one another. Hopefully, they will take their enthusiasm to practice and work on their fundamentals. If they do, they could have a good year.

Austen Pereira-McGee started on the mound for Calistoga with Dalton Hooten catching. Pereira-McGee coasted through the first three innings, giving up two hits and a single run. In the fourth, the bats of the Trojans came to life.

After three runs scored on three hits and an error and with no one out, Coach McMahon switched the starting battery. Dalton Hooten became the pitcher with Pereira-McGee catching.

Although a little wild when he took over, Hooten got out of the inning without giving up any more runs. He remained on the mound for the rest of the game, ultimately surrendering the final 3 runs to Lower Lake.

Other than the fourth inning, Lower Lake’s runs were assisted by a number of walks, stolen bases, wild pitches and a balk with a runner on third. On the offense,
